In some instances party lines were drawn rigorously and the whip was used freely, but in many others, old-timers kicked out of the traces and voted for men irrespective of party. Coalitions of a more or less questionable nature had been formed before the day of election, and even on yesterday, when the drift of things was suspected, candidates for some of the offices began to make alliances of all kinds without reserve. After the polls closed the City Building and other accessable places were filled with a motley crowd of boys and men, who awaited the returns until a late hour, but their curiosity was not gratified, as who awaited the returns until a late hour, but their curiosity was not gratified, as the returns came in slowly and gradually and to a majority of the curious ones unsatisfactorily. At the City Building the crowd was at times very demonstrative, and some of its members diagnatingly so. Jack Brandon, who will be remembered as the principal in the disgraceful row which took place on the steamer Courier last Summer, was the principal in another fight in the alley near the postoffice, on Market street last night. He and another braiser named Murphy, had a rough and tumble fight in which Murphy was badly worked. There were no arrest. At the office of J. R. Cowden, Esq. At the office of J. R. Cowden, Esq., on Chapline street, a number of Republicans and Republican candidates had assembled and Republican candidates had assembled to get the returns by telephone. Among the candidates we noticed Capt, Bennett and Mr. Frank Bowers. The first ward to report was the Eighth, and when it rolled up a majority of 118 for Bennett, and over 300 for Bowers, there was a scene of the wildest enthusiasm, and both night about 10 o'clock, and a moment atterwards a young man ran up market street like a deer, pursued by a crowd of men and boys. The fugitive was overhauled at the Market House and taken to the lock-up by Mat Perrill. He gave his name as Andy Sayder, and comes from East Wheeling. He wantonly threw a stone through the show window of Proctor's saloon, and then run as stated above.

of the wildest enthusiasm, and both the gentlemen were subjects of many congratulations. The returns from other wards also indicated unmistabably the drift of events, and assured the election of Bennett and reasonably so that of Bowers. The most satisfactory feature of the returns from the Eighth ward, however, was the announcement of the defeat of the entire Democratic Council ticket, from Jonas Pickett, down to the distinguished James W. Nicholl, the odoriferous J. Wm. Wait and the polite and urbane W. O. Handlan. When this announcement was made known in the city it was not credited at first, and it was it was not credited at first, and it was quite a while before the public generally could be made to swallow it at all.
